

Episode 114: What It Means When Your Desires Are NOT Manifesting

Hello Gorgeous Souls!

Welcome back to the Manifestation Babe Podcast!

Today, I felt inspired to create an episode talking about those times when your desires are not manifesting. So if you're currently frustrated with the Law of Attraction, then this episode is for you.

I'm about to tell you exactly what to do to overcome this annoying phase we spiritual people call surrendering and trusting in the divine timing. So what does it mean when the money is not flowing in? When the love of your life is not showing up? When your business is staying in the same place month after month? When you are not yet sleeping in the dream home that you posted on your vision board last year? Well, a long time ago, one of my mentors Stephanie told me something that really frustrated me at the time. It was frustrating mainly because I did not understand the profound and spiritual meaning behind what she was saying. To me, it did not match up to the manifestation and Law of Attraction books I was reading. Granted, during that time, I had limited experience with making manifestations actionable. So what Stephanie told me while I was still living with my parents was this, "Kathrin success will come when you are ready for it". I remember thinking, "Ready for it? I am ready for it NOW. I want the money NOW. I want success NOW. It's going to change my life. Stephanie, I'm ready for it, because I need it now." However, now I know, that's the Ego talking. Today I understand the meaning behind this profound phrase and it has a lot to do with why things are not yet manifesting in your life.

Simply put, you are not ready for what you are manifesting yet. You are still growing into the level of success that you are manifesting. There are still lessons to be learned and evolutions to be experienced. There is still a journey and a process of becoming the best version of yourself. You are still creating an energetic space for these desires to come into your life through your belief systems. The Universe is still assessing how energetically ready you are for these desires to be a part of your life.

Let me ask you this, if you had everything you wanted right now at the push of a button, would you really know what to do with it? Would you respect it? Would you appreciate it? Would it be a part of you energetically? Would your subconscious beliefs be in alignment with these desires? Or would you slip into self-sabotage because you don't yet have the learned wisdom to keep up with these desires? See, when I look back on my life versus where I am today, I always thank the Universe that it did not deliver my desires to me at a time when my ego wanted them. I am talking about my egoic timeline. The timeline that we are all pulling out of our a*s'es, thinking that we know best and have the game of life figured out. I would have simply sabotaged everything because that reality did not yet match up with the person that I was at the time. For example, if I had millions of dollars in 2016, I would literally be broke today because I would not know how to manage it. If I had the number of courses, academies, and students as I do right now, I would not be able to support and attend to them nearly to the level that I am able to today. I would not know what to do with them, how to help them, and I would have no wisdom to share.

So why do I not have hundreds of millions of dollars and millions of students, courses, and academies right now? Simply put, I am not ready for that yet. I do not yet have the space to keep up with that amount of work. My website is not yet capable of supporting that amount of users. My team is not yet nearly big enough to handle that kind of customer support traffic. Lastly, I would not know what to do with this level of success, yet. If you notice, the keyword in all of these statements is yet, because one day I will be ready for all of that.

However, for now, I would not even know what to do with that level of success. I do not know how to buy a multi-unit real estate. Do I know what is best to do with hundreds of millions of dollars? No. I have only mastered the multimillion-dollar level. I know I have so many more lessons to learn in order to reach the next level that I know I am inevitably meant for. The timing, however, isn't on me. Everything will unfold according to divine timing. Everything that is coming my way is exactly what the Universe trusts me with. At my very first seminar, Unleash The Power Within, in October of 2015, Tony Robbins said, "If you don't know how to give away $1 out of every $10 that you have, you will never give away a million dollars out of every $10 million that you have." This is very powerful. If you do not learn how to manage what you currently have, how could you ever be entrusted with more? So I challenge you to start seeing everything that you currently have as what you've been entrusted with. The Universe is counting on you to master your current reality so that you can attract more to be responsible for. When you learn to manage and respect the money that you currently have, and be grateful for how much you've been entrusted with, the Universe will inevitably trust you with more.

So how does manifestation align with the Law of Attraction? Well, what you currently manage, respect, appreciate and have gratitude for will inevitably attract more. Instead of being upset about your current circumstances and lack of manifesting successes, why not get excited about the mission that is currently in front of you! How can you love and appreciate your current reality on an even deeper level? What else can you commit yourself to when it comes to using, appreciating, and loving what you already have? That's what's going to unlock the next level of success for you. This is what is going to attract even more of your desires to you. When things are not manifesting in your reality yet, just see it as the Universe waiting for you to create space for it. How you create space for it is proving that you can handle it. So before you attract the man or woman of your dreams, start loving yourself on an even deeper level. Before you attract the income of your dreams, start managing, respecting and loving the income that you currently have. Before you live in your dream home, start taking care of the current apartment, studio, condo or house that you live in. Decorate it, give it love, clean it, tidy it up, do whatever you would do if you were actually already in your dream home. Before you can start your own organization, foundation, or charity to save the world, make sure you start practicing right now. Donate 10% of your current income to an organization, foundation or charity that inspires you in the present moment. Before you can help millions of people, focus on just helping one person in your life.

You see, massive success is an inevitable part of your future. Do not worry about the timeline of it happening. Instead, worry about taking responsibility for the present moment. Only then, get excited about what's to come, because it will come. It's not a matter of will it or will it not. It's a matter of divine timing that is always working in your favor babe. Trust that in the same exact way that the Universe has trusted you with what you already have.

Now, if this podcast episode helped you let out a big sigh of release and trust in the divine timing of your life, I want to know! I also appreciate every single review that is left on this podcast. So thank you. Thank you so much. I hope you guys have be best day taking care of your current reality. I cannot wait to connect with you again in the next episode.
